THE CHALLENGE FOR MEN'S MINDS

Oftentimes we hear students who are completing their high school education comment on the fact that there are no frontiers or new worlds to conquer or to challenge them. In these turbulent times nothing could be further from the truth. Today the youth of this nation face one of the greatest challenges of mankind—the challenge for the mind of man. How this challenge will be met and what final results will be attained rests with the graduates of our public schools.

The challenge for men's minds manifests itself in many ways. As new secrets of the world and universe are made known, this challenge multiplies in intensity. Within the past decade man has discovered the secret of the atom, has conquered the sound barrier, but has not yet achieved the knowledge of the understanding necessary to live in harmony with himself or his fellow man. The challenges facing us today and which in a large part will be met by your generation are these: moral values vs. material values; faith vs. cynicism; and of course, Democracy vs. Communism.

One of the weapons in our command is that of Faith–faith in ourselves, faith in our democratic institutions, faith in our fellow man. To meet these challenges and to test such faith, it is necessary that clear thinking be used by all of us. We must utilize the knowledge of the past, be aware of the mistakes and the successes of the past and present them in the proper perspective if our thinking is to be clear. There still exists a frontier, perhaps the most challenging of all, the frontier of men's minds.

Our forefathers, the pioneers who conquered the frontier in our own nations, had at their command a powerful force. Each of you has at his command that same force. What is it? It is trust. It is also faith and hope. The manner in which you use these potential forces—faith, trust, knowledge of the past, and the desire to think clearly will determine the outcome of this challenge for men's minds.

CLASS WILL

We, the Senior Class of 1954, being of sound mind, declare this to be our last will and testament.

Jane Cameron gladly wills to Judy Chaffee, who's not at all shy around boys, her ability to turn red as a beet whenever boys are mentioned.

Ross Yaple leaves his "lady-like-ness, as he portrayed it in the senior play to Herman Titsworth.

To Gary Allen, Milton Shoemaker gives his aggressiveness and hopes that it will enable Gary to hold his own in the senior room next year.

Pearla Swartwood bequeaths her gum-snapping technique to Lois Hollister.

Vivian Watros wills her ability to get out of her music lesson every other week to Beverly Daily who can never get away with it.

Don (Bang-Bang) Beach wills to Eugene Chase the secret of how to split a telephone cable at fifty yards with one shot.

Betty Malkovsky leaves her rule book on "The Care and Courtship of the Male" for Mary Miller to use.

Ambitious Harry Doane bequeaths his motto "Never do today what you can do the day after tomorrow" (especially homework) to Lorraine Crance.

Mildred Holmes wills an economy size bottle of aspirins to Jean Marie Fuller and Janet Pakkala who will need them in their new job as editors of the "Echo."

Eileen Blomquist leaves her ability to get a boyfriend who's willing to drive any distance just to see her to Cora Hayes, who's not doing so badly herself.

Gordon Terwillegar wills his charming ways with the women to Francis Kippola and Larry Baylor who are both sort of shy.

"Fender-bender" Eugene Avery leaves the three remaining good fenders on the Driver Training car for Evelyn Bittikofer to bend.

Edith Payne bequeaths to anyone who wants it her ability to stay at home at least once a week and bravely walk up to Mrs. Kent with her excuse the next day.

Alice Payne willingly gives her freckles to Mary Ellen Smith.

From Dick Dillick, Jean Marie Fuller receives the P. A. mike. Take good care of it, Jean Marie.

Janice DeVore leaves to Bonita Everhart her ability to get handsome pen-pals.

Thomas Chaffee wills his ability to remain a good sport, no matter what, to another good sport, Eugene Chase.

Joyce Nero receives the secret of getting into school three minutes late without being caught by the "secret police" from Joanne Burmester.

Marilyn Cameron leaves to Lawrence Teeter ability to burn the midnight oil and still be able to stay awake in class the next day.

Ed Heslop bestows upon Howard Goff his snazzy way of dressing.

Jane Shultz leaves her charms which enabled her to hold onto one guy for five years to Beverly Daily.

Nancy French bequeaths to Bonita Everhart her shorthand ability.

Ivar Landstrom wills his ability to talk a blue streak without getting out of breath to Bob Blovsky, who can never think of anything to say.

To show our appreciation to Miss Thatcher for all her help, we wish to leave her all the checkerboards, the magazine rack, and our good behavior.

To all of Newfield Central School we bequeath the task of remembering us with fondness.

In witness thereof, we have hereunto subscribed our name in the year Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-four.

CLASS HISTORY

The class of '54 has few days remaining in N. C. S. Soon we shall leave these hallowed halls, never again to enter as students. Yes, our days as students are over but the memories of these days will never be forgotten.

Our first remembrance was the fall of 1942 when we began first grade under the excellent guidance of Miss Twig. Thirty-five scared little kids came through that year with flying colors.

It wasn't long, however, before our class began to expand. In the fourth grade we were joined by Ross Yaple, Gordon Terwillegar, and Richard Hillick. Ivar Landstrom and Harry Doane became members of our class in fifth grade. It was in the fifth grade that several pupils began to show their interest in music. Ten pupils honored the band with their presence. In sixth grade Eileen Blomquist came to us from Bloomfield, New Jersey.

Before we realized it, we were in seventh grade. We were fortunate in claiming a new teacher at Newfield, Mrs. Doris Votry, as our advisor who brought us through our first year in junior high school with honors. This year we held a card party which netted us, in our estimation, a small fortune.

In the sophomore year we were joined by Nancy French who came from Ithaca High. We held a dance that year which netted us peanuts! We were all sorry to see Jerry Novak leave us to go to Florida.

We were even more successful in our junior year when we used the profits from our play "Damsels in Distress" to underwrite the cost of our "unforgettable" prom.

At last we were seniors. Little did we realize the work this would mean. But we had Joanne Burmester, who came from New York City, to help us. Our first project was the senior play, "Papa Says No!" which we all enjoyed and on which we also made a good profit. We also gave a supper for the Black Cats. We thought we would never get those dishes done.

Of course, the "Memoria" has kept us all busy, but we have enjoyed every moment of it.

The senior class of 1954 hereby wishes to thank Miss Thatcher for helping us through a trying but worthwhile year.

We have had twelve short but memorable years which will never be forgotten. We wish the next year's graduating class all the luck and good fortune that we have enjoyed in the past years.

PROPHECY

The year is 1964. The scene: Eileen Blomquist, dark circles under her eyes, her hair a mess, the reason: she has finally succeeding in balancing the Senior Year-Book account. She finds that we made a profit of 73 cents which must be divided among the 24 seniors. She is seated at the controls of her prying-eyeometer and is desperately trying to locate each member of the class of '54. Let's peer over her shoulder and see what luck she has.

Those in the path of the nearest channel, Ithaca, New York, seem to be crowding the screen. In one corner we see the senior mermaid, Vivian Watros, who is now the swimming instructor at the YMCA pool. And over here, quite a different scene. Gordon Terwillegar seems to be putting his landscaping abilities to good advantage. He is beautifying the new sewage disposal plant.

Now who is this trying to crowd into the picture? Edith Payne, no less, who has finally been forced to move out of her cozy little trailer. She finds a trailer becomes inconvenient when a family of five is trying to live in close harmony.

What is making all that clatter? Well, here comes Milton Shoemaker driving a Model T Ford. The last we knew Gene Avery was applying his marvelous mechanical ability by servicing Milton's 1963 Lincoln convertible.

Who is this doing her washing at the local laundromat? Why it is none other than Janice DeVore who is talking to Pearla Swartwood, the manager of the High Speed Laundry.

Hmmm! A big basketball game is under way in the gym of our Alma Mater. It would seem that Ed Heslop and Betty Malkovsky have taken over the physical education department. Ed is just as bald as his predecessor.

My word! Here's Dick Hillick testing his new combination potato-digger, washer, and peeler on the hills of Ross Yaples' 500-acre potato kingdom. We hope Dick's invention won't spoil the modern housewife.

A wedding! Jane Shultz must have put off the date until Don Beach could be sworn in as Justice of the Peace, so that she could be the first to enter the state of matrimony under his jurisdiction.

Eileen is turning the dial to Owego, and there's nurse Joanne Burmester taking care of her problem patient Millie Holmes, who has resided there for the last seven years.

Eileen is trying another channel, New York City, no less. We see Gail Heliseva is fretting about over-due books at the New York Public Library.

What's this? Marilyn Cameron's Small Animal Hospital where Dr. Cameron is now operating on a white rat. And to think it all started with two little rabbits!

Who is this beautiful receptionist at Dr. Cameron's hospital? Why, it's Nancy French. She started out as secretary at the Animal Husbandry Department at Cornell.

Still further away—Texas, no less! On the screen comes the office of Landstrom Nationwide Trucking Service. We see two secretaries perched on boss "Ike's" knees. How does he expect to get any business done this way?

Crowding into the Texas picture is "Gentle Janie" Cameron, a recruiting officer for the WAVES. Seems impossible!

There must be a tornado in the air. Something has switched the channel to Florida! At Vero Beach, we see Tom Chaffee training his pennant-winning Dodger team of 1964. It seems Tom finally became disgusted with the Yankees.

Oh, oh! A weak tube. The picture recedes to Peoria, Illinois. Harry Doane, President of the American Bowling Congress, is presiding over the anual convention. Harry became president after winning the national singles championship for five years.

Before the prying eyeometer blew out we managed to locate Alice Payne, who has gained national fame by finally balancing the Federal Budget for the first time in history.

Having successfully completed her task, Eileen may now resume her study of business at Maryland University.

BASKETBALL

The 1953-54 basketball team was very unfortunate in losing many close games. There were four returning lettermen, Edward Heslop, Donald Beach, Herman Titsworth, and Gordon Terwillegar.

In the league standing we had a five win–ten loss record, but came out in fourth place to make us eligible for the playoffs at Boynton Junior High. There we were defeated by Van Etten 58-51.
